| 1 | H.M. King Edward VIII (later the Duke of Windsor), fine English navy wool fur lined overcoat with Astrakhan collar made for the monarch in 1934 by Simpson & London Ltd when he was Prince of Wales. This very stylish coat is cut in the military fashion with wool twill body, double breasted front with two rows of six polished horn buttons and features an angled breast pocket and angled side pockets with flaps, upturned cuffs and wide Astrakhan collar. It is further enhanced with a nutria fur lining for extra warmth. The inside pocket bears the tailor's label marked 'H.R.H. The Prince of Wales K.G./ No.X4-438 and dated 2.11.34. The size is chest 40in (102cm), length 49in, (124cm) H.R.H. The Duke of Windsor as he became was considered a leader of men's fashion even down to the way he tied his ties (the Windsor Knot). In his book 'A Family Album' published in 1960, he recalls this coat being made for him as a gift by his old friend and equerry, General Trotter, and had served him well as an invaluable cold-weather asset: "In New York, when I venture out into the streets in the winter, I almost always put on a heavy, fur lined overcoat..... My grandfather, who liked to wear a coat with an Astrakhan collar, might have not have scorned this one of mine.....' After the Duke and Duchess of Windsor died this coat and the rest of their possessions were sold by Sothebys in several monumental sales in New York in 1997. The coat which had been so beautifully cared for along with the rest of the Duke's wardrobe by his loyal valet Sydney Johnson, was numbered lot 2865 and far exceeded its estimate of 1500-2500 dollars going on to make 20,700 dollars (approx £15,000 at the time). This is a very rare opportunity to buy a very stylish and beautifully made Royal overcoat with guaranteed provenance belonging to one of the most famous and controversial British monarchs of the 20th century. £2,000-3,000 | 4 | H.R.H. - 81 Important English Royal inlaid satinwood table made for H.M. Queen Adelaide, the Consort of H.M. King William IV in the transitional French-style, attributed to Robert Blake and Sons, circa 1830. The top inlaid with rococo style marquetry in varied exotic timbers and ivory, some stained, bearing the crowned AR cypher of Adelaide of Saxe-Meinigen, Queen of the United Kingdom (1831-1837), with side drawer and adorned with ormolu mounts surmounting the cabriole legs and feet. The top 51 x 34cm, 67cm high. APHA Ref: ZZTQ3C5R
- This fine table is indicative in design and conception of the Anglo-gallic taste which emerged during the first three decades of the 19th century thanks to the trend for collecting objects related to the Anciene regime, sparked by important tastemakers such as King George IV, William Beckford and dealer-designers such as Edward Holmes Baldock and Robert Fogg.
- Whilst unsigned, the marquetry can be attributed to the Blake workshop, premier marquetry producers in London during the 1830s and 1840s, who worked notably for designers and dealers like Baldock. It is interesting to note that such florid monograms appear in marquetry form by Blake on a series of Louis XV-style West Indian Satinwood desks made for the Duchess of Buccleuch as well as on the celebrated tables made for King Louis Philippe at Claremont. Likewise, the stylised tendrils are comparable, albeit on a reduced scale, with those found on the celebrated case of the Erard piano supplied to Baron Foley, now in the Met. The use of satinwood as a ground inlaid with different precious timbers (some dyed) and ivory further supports this, being a feature used on multiple occasions by the workshop.
- It is interesting to note, given the provenance, the mounts mirror those on a bureau de dame by Leonard Boudin purchased by the Queen, still in the Royal collection. Whilst at present it is not known from whom this was acquired it is not impossible that it may be the same source as the present table in light of the practices of contemporary dealer-designers like Baldock and Fogg.
- Provenance: commissioned by Queen Adelaide (1792-1849), consort to King William IV
- A gift to the Rev Fredrick William Blomberg (1761-1847), personal secretary and Chaplain to King George IV and subsequently chaplain in ordinary to King William IV, by Queen Adelaide.
- Upon his death by descent to the Newbery family and thence by descent. £2,500-3,500

This die no for Llewellyn is not recorded in Berry, nor is any record of a die no without the 'Six Pence Addtl Duty' legend, which was introduced in 1776. However, as Llewellyn took over from McEvoy 1777 all his ASs should have this legend' £500-700

Royalty, Antiques & Fine Art, 5th Nov, 2024 - 6th Nov, 2024

- 901 Very rare part set of Thomas Bowles South Sea Bubble Stock-jobbing Cards or The Humours of Change Alley playing cards circa 1720, 42 cards of the original 52 set, with facsimile replacements from the 1988 Roger Whiting facsimile set including his extra cards describing the pack, the Ace of Spades with red tax stamp, each image approximately 9 x 6cm.
NB: The South Sea Bubble was the financial collapse of the South Sea Company in 1720. The company was formed to supply slaves to Spanish America. The South Sea Company was formed in 1711 in London and its purpose was to supply 4800 slaves each year for 30 years to the Spanish plantations in Central and Southern America, The cards document genuine or bogus joint-stock companies which had been set up in 1719 and 1720 at the time of the South Sea Bubble to entice investors £2,000-4,000
- 902 Mid 19th century Chinese black lacquer gaming box, of canted cushion form, decorated with figures and pagodas, with removable cover enclosing a fitted interior of twelve card trays and seven lidded counter boxes, 37cm wide £250-400
- 903 Complete set of 52 single ended playing cards by Gibson and Hunt, circa 1801, each each 9 x 6.5cm, together with contemporary box. Mr Rayner's cataloguing states: '52-card single-ended standard pack. Square corners, plain back. AS is GIBSON & HUNT, die no 103, cut in July 1801 according to Berry: page 44. 'Superfine' embossed on AC Notes on a similar pack by Roddy Somerville from 'Curator's Corner' on WCMPC website, where he describes a gift of a similar pack to the Company with an AS 'Gibson, Hunt & Son'. He explains that the pack can be dated precisely because this AS was in use only from October 1801 to September 1803, and that Gibson & Hunt was earlier (presumably meaning that this AS was in use only from July to October 1801?)' £100-150
- 904 Hall & Son 'Piquet' set of 52 reduced size with wide borders single ended playing cards, circa 1806, housed in period card box, each 9 x 5.6cm. Mr Rayner's catalogue notes state 'Standard (if a little idiosyncratic) English small size single-ended courts. Sometimes referred to, erroneously, as 'Piquet', because Piquet was not played at this time, so more likely to be for gambling, such as Bassette - see Lodge reference. Hall & Son existed 1799-1810 (Lodge p. 181). The AS has 'sixpence additional duty three times (1801-1828 - Berry reference). The AS is identified as Die No 7, nos 1-20 being registered as 'new' to Hall & Son in 1806 - page 45 Berry reference.' £150-250

- 921 Nursery Rhyme cards, by C. W. Faulkner, c.1900 (Pre-1905, when Faulkner became a limited company), comprising 54 cards (18 sets of 3 per character) + Rules. No box. Per WoPC (RP), "Nursery Rhymes Misfitz published by C. W. Faulkner & Co., c. 1900. Beautifully drawn and lithographed, every picture tells its own tale. This game appeared relatively early in the Misfitz range of games." Game appears complete, but WoPC version has 72 cards, but again per RP, WoPC, 'Usually it seems the older Misfitz games with 72 cards were reissued at a later date in packs of 54 cards or 60 cards. The later Misfitz games from around 1920, were issued in packs of 54 cards but there were only 9 figures with all the cards duplicated. Together with Wonderful Misfits - Faulkner c.1909 Description (Rex Pitts WOPC): "Wonderland Misfitz by C.W. Faulkner & Co., Ltd., c. 1908. The cards are illustrated with characters from "Alice in Wonderland" & "Alice Through the Looking Glass", although Alice herself does not appear." Comprising 72 cards (24 sets of three cards) + Rules and part of box, which includes a current list of Faulkner Games, with the latest date of 1908 (Golly Misfitz). (2) £50-70

Also Bezique set by Reynolds, circa 1880, 4x32 (plus 4 soiled sample cards) in original Bésique box, with 4 wooden markers and rules. The courts are 'unturned', and the queens do not have any white on their crowns. Per Lodge, courts R2, AS1. Also Reproduction of a pack of Woolley and Co. Eureka c.1880. Sealed pack, with 'Dexter type' indices. Original pack in Paul Bostok's collection on plainbacks website - M7. Presented to delegates at the 2017 IPCS convention in London. (4) £80-120
- 923 Complete deck of 52 cards by Willis & Co. - Deakins's 1st circa 1886 depicting political characters associated with Home Rule for Ireland campaign. Cartorama 84, item 205. From the WOPC website, by Barney Townsend: 1st edition of Deakin's Political Playing Cards, printed by W.H. Willis & Co., London, 1886. The packs were printed in three editions by Willis and Co., and the first edition sold 60,000 packs in three months. The slogan "Home Rule for Ireland" was popularised by Isaac Bath and Parnell (King of Clubs), leaders of the Movement. Other political personages can be seen depicted in the remaining court cards. After the Conservatives lost the 1880 election and Disraeli's death the year after, Salisbury (King of Diamonds) emerged as Conservative leader in the House of Lords, with Sir Stafford Northcote leading the party in the Commons. He became Prime Minister in June 1885 when the Liberal leader William Ewart Gladstone resigned, and he held the office until January 1886. When Gladstone ('Grand Old Man', King of Hearts) came out in favour of Home Rule for Ireland, Salisbury opposed him and formed an alliance with the breakaway Liberal Unionists and the won the subsequent general election. He remained Prime Minister until Gladstone's Liberals formed a government with the support of the Irish Nationalist Party, despite the Unionists gaining the largest number of votes and seats in the 1892 general election. £50-100

Version also by Piatnik - see e.g. Cartorama reference, appears to have the same trumps. Reference: Carey Collection, item Austria 232 (but a later version there by Piatnik) <http://www.endebroek.de/coll/pages/a87.html> - Endebroek collection Cartorama 75, item 4 (Piatnik version)' £70-100
- 928 Complete deck of 78 Piedmont Tarot cards, by Grimaud, Circa 1900, each 11 x 6.5cm. NB: Mr Rayner notes 'According to the Cartorama reference the deck had the internal company name of "Italian double-ended", and was produced by Grimaud until 1930.' References: Cartorama 51 item 110, page 23; Fournier vol 1 item 260 France, page 149; IPCS Pattern Sheet IT-1.21; Depaulis - Tarot, Jeu et Magie, item 115, page 121 £50-70
- 929 Complete deck of 97 Italian Minchiate cards, circa 1930, each approximately 10 x 6cm. Mr Rayner notes: 'This is almost certainly the last example of a Minchiate pack manufactured for use as a game.' Reference: Cartorama: 70 item 169 (but note that is a version with square corners and a 98th card) £200-300
- 930 Full 54 card deck of 'Domestic scenes' tarot cards, circa 1890, each approximately 11 x 6cm. Mr Rayner notes: 'A 54 card version of the 'Domestic Scenes' tarot - IPCS (FT3) - preferred title is "Bourgeois", and Thierry Depaulis refers to it as 'Nouveau'. Domestic and other scenes on the trump cards. In Tarot, Jeu et Mage', Thierry Depaulis (page 128) provides a list of the scenes on the tarot cards, and the order in which they are portrayed on the trumps. This pack has those scenes, but not in the order shown in that list. e.g. Tarot 9 in this pack (see scan) is trump 21 in the Depaulis list. The calendar in trump 12 is 1867, probably an indication of when the cards were first produced.' References: Depaulis, Tarot, Jeu et Magie page 128; Depaulis, Le Tarot Révélé, page 55. The pack illustrated there has the same trump cards, but in a different order; ct. Wüst, page 74 - 'Encyclopaedic Tarot" with trumps apparently in the 'correct' order. <http://www.playingcardmakerscollection.co.uk/Cardhtml/0097.html> - WCMPC collection. Note Trump 21 in that collection is the same as Trump 9 scanned here.' £50-100

She is useful wherever she goes, particularly in willing believers to go on to perfection. There is frequently something very mysterious in ye ways of Divine Providence, a little of them we may understand, but much more is beyond our comprehension and we must be content to say, what dost I know now but I shall know thereafter, at present it is sufficient to know, that all his ways are mercy and truth to those that love him. Even in these troubled times, there is a very considerable...of the work of God. Clear to Him with your whole heart...will have more and more reason to praise him..'
